\textbf{T}he recent cryptocurrency boom has been slow to cool off, with the market capitalization of all cryptocurrencies surpassing $2 trillion. The latest surge in prices has been driven by a combination of factors, including the growing adoption of cryptocurrencies in finance, the increasing trend towards decentralized finance (DeFi), and the rising popularity of NFTs (non-fungible tokens).

A recent study by the Crypto Currency Index (CRI) shows that the total market capitalization of all cryptocurrencies was $2 trillion as of the end of May 2021, marking a new milestone in the history of the cryptocurrency market. The study also reveals that the number of active cryptocurrency addresses has reached a record high, with over 80 million addresses holding cryptocurrency.

The study further notes that the market capitalization of the top 10 cryptocurrencies, which account for over 80% of the total market capitalization of all cryptocurrencies, has reached a record high of $1.5 trillion. The top 10 cryptocurrencies include Bitcoin, Ethereum, Dogecoin, Binance Coin, Cardano, Polkadot, Solana, Litecoin, Tezos, and Chainlink.

The study also highlights the growing trend towards decentralized finance (DeFi), with the total value locked in DeFi protocols surpassing $100 billion. The study notes that the growth of DeFi is driven by the increasing demand for decentralized financial services, including lending, borrowing, and staking, which are provided on blockchain networks.

Another significant trend highlighted by the study is the growing popularity of NFTs, with the total value of NFTs surpassing $30 billion. The study notes that the growth of NFTs is driven by the increasing demand for unique and authentic digital assets, which are provided on blockchain networks.

Overall, the study notes that the cryptocurrency market is continuing to grow, driven by a combination of factors, including the increasing adoption of cryptocurrencies in finance, the growing trend towards decentralized finance (DeFi), and the rising popularity of NFTs. The study predicts that the cryptocurrency market will continue to grow, with the total market capitalization of all cryptocurrencies有望 surpassing $3 trillion in the near future.
